Great Southern

GSFLW in full swing

The AFL season is fast approaching but the Great Southern Football League Women's season has been pumping for weeks!

The league celebrated Pride Round, highlighted by Claremont's WAFLW team playing their preseason intraclub which featured six GSFLW products.

The Youth Girls are moving from strength-to-strength and building an exciting foundation for young female footballers throughout the region.

Mt Barker are still undefeated in the league and are a major flag fancy as the finals race remains wide open for all teams with just three rounds left.

Albany Primary School kick for goals

Albany Primary School enjoyed a full two weeks of footy fever with clinics for their eager and excitable young students.

The students learnt the art of handballing and kicking before finishing with long bomb and goal kicking competitions at the end. Rick the Rock Eagle swooped in and paid a visit which got the students up and about for season 2025.

2024 graduate Theo Wallefeld was also heralded as the 2024 winner of the Design a Jumper competition for his brilliantly detailed jumper that pays homage to Albany's famous whaling history.

Storm's Brewing

The Great Southern Storm have been training hard throughout the off-season with numerous players training with Claremont colts over the holiday period and returning fitter, faster and stronger. The young talented academy showcased their ability in two preseason scratch matches against tough opponents.

The Storm's younger crop of players took on Claremont's futures squad at Retravision Stadium on February 16 and held their own against a highly polished outfit on a warm day.

The Storm then pitted both their futures and colts sides against two combined South West Academy units in Manjimup on February 22.

Despite facing a team built by three separate WAFL zones combined, the Storm again proved their mettle and stood up to the challenge and will no doubt be better for the experience.
